

Rayonier At a Glance

Value From The Ground Up™

We are a global forest products company maximizing value from a growing timberland base and the production of the world's highest purity specialty cellulose fibers. For 85 years, our company has thrived due to a focus on three, core businesses, each well positioned for growth in the global economy.

Forest Resources

As one of the largest private landowners in the U.S., we own, lease or manage approximately 2.7 million acres of working forests in the U.S and New Zealand to supply timber to a wide variety of markets including pulp, paper, lumber, renewable energy production and other wood products.

Performance Fibers

Rayonier produces two types of high-quality Performance Fibers: cellulose specialties — which are used in everything from filters and LCD screens to pharmaceuticals — and fluff pulp, which is used in disposable diapers and other absorbent products.

Real Estate

At Rayonier, we evaluate each acre of our timberland to determine its greatest potential and highest and best use. In some cases, land that was once best suited for growing timber is now more valuable for residential, industrial, commercial or conservation use. Our real estate subsidiary provides added value by entitling or selling these properties.

REIT Structure

For shareholders who have held our stock over the past five years, the combination of our attractive dividend yield and stock price gains has resulted in a 68 percent total return, significantly outperforming both our Real Estate Investment Trust and forest products peers. Rayonier is structured as a real estate investment trust and our stock is traded on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol RYN.
